TQD Castings/C-P MODELS Intellectual property policy.

1. Introduction

This document makes clear c-p models attitude towards unauthorized and unlicensed use of our copyright imagery by private customers and collectors of our miniatures as part of their hobby, rather than commercial gain. It is addressed in the main to those who exchange news, information, and 'house' rules, and so on via the Internet in general and theWorldWideWeb in particular. These basic principles apply in equal measure to other hobby activities, for example, fanzine publications. We receive many requests from hobbyists from all corners of the globe who are asking to use our intellectual property in many strange and wonderful ways.

We enjoy the new imaginative ideas that hobbyists have for our intellectual property. Unfortunately, we receive so many individual requests that we cannot reply to everyone. With this in mind we have produced a definitive FAQ that clearly states what you can and cannot do in relation to our intellectual property.

It is important that you realise that:

?TQD Castings/C-P Models reserves the right to change this policy without notice.

?The contents of this policy are in no way meant or intended to be a license of any nature.

?That most uses of our intellectual property without a license are likely to be an infringement; however, 1946 Storm of Eagles© or 1946 Epoch of the Dead© is unlikely to object to any infringement if you adhere to this policy.

?Please note that we reserve the right at any time and without notice to insist that you cease or alter your use of our IP – we reserve this right so we can comply with any licenses that we have with third parties. We cannot strongly emphasize this point enough and ask you to keep this in mind at all times when using our IP. We would not want anyone to feel ambushed if we asked him or her to, for example, remove the short story that they had been working on for twelve months from publication on the Internet.
What is Intellectual property?

Intellectual property (as opposed to tangible/physical property) deals with concepts and creations of the mind that you can't actually touch. It's property, because it can be bought and sold, transferred from one person to another – just like any other property. For example, if we sculpt a model, we can sell the physical object (the miniature figure) to one person AND still retain the right to reproduce the miniature again and again (our copyright).

For the purposes of this document, TQD Castings, C-P Models, 1946 Storm of Eagles and 1946 Epoch of the Dead is concerned with two main areas of intellectual property - copyright (the right to copy a work) and trade marks - the names, badges, logos, or signs we use to distinguish our products from other companies.

Why we need an IP policy?

We need a policy for intellectual property because the laws that govern intellectual property are such that we have to make a visible effort to actively police and protect our rights or we risk losing them, and if we lose control of our Intellectual property rights then we lose the long-term ability to create new and exciting miniatures/models.

The unauthorized use of someone else's intellectual property (by either an individual or a company) is dishonest, criminal and against the law. It is theft!

Many hours of hard work and huge amounts of money have gone into developing our miniatures, imagery and game rules. We are understandably proud of our inventions and ideas and are very protective of our rights and we will not let others profit unfairly from the results of our labour than you would be to let someone steal from your home. This is why we will seek to prevent any unauthorized use of our Intellectual property, if necessary by legal action, if your actions do not comply with the Intellectual property policy written here.

The aim of this IP policy is to give you a set of guidelines on what you can and cannot do with TQD Castings/C-P Models, 1946 Storm of Eagles and 1946 Epoch of the Dead copyright, trade marks and miniatures/models. Please follow them and you will be helping us to grow and provide you with the products you want.

Note of caution!

Even following all of our guidelines can still land you in hot water if we object to part or all of your web site, fanzine, tabletop wargames establishment, or whatever. We always reserve the right to take action, without notice; if we feel it's necessary to do so to protect our copyright or trade marks. In legal terms, this is not a waiver of our rights, nor a licence of them.

Please check this page regularly in case there is any change to this policy, law does change every so often and we need to change our guidelines accordingly. If you are unsure of anything you have read, please contact us directly?

2. Counterfeiting our miniatures/Models

Counterfeiting or Piracy is a crime in most countries worldwide. In addition to the other penalties, you can go to prison for counterfeiting. The same is true of person-to-person electronic file sharing – if you have not paid for the material and you download it using person-to-person or computer to computer software, you are engaging in illegal activity. The same is true even if you already own a copy of the relevant Codex or Army Book. Please remember that 1946 Storm of Eagles© and 1946 Epoch of the Dead does not reproduce its rule books or codices in electronic format – if you ever see any such material in electronic format, it will be the product of criminal or infringing activity.

Warning: we will prosecute counterfeiters regardless of the cost. Such disgusting activities will kill the hobby for everyone!

This is a free and open market and we appreciate that we need fair and open 'competition' – in fact, we wouldn't even think of it as competition because it all helps to build up the hobby. However, there are an unscrupulous minority who will ride roughshod shortcut to success by copying our designs and models and will trade on the goodwill we've built up over the years – these people are counterfeiters. Let us make it quite clear to these unscrupulous people, 1946 Storm of Eagles© 1946 Epoch of the Dead will not tolerate counterfeiting of its models/miniatures in any form nor any other unauthorized use of its trade marks or copyright material, or other intellectual property we release. And we always seek the maximum civil and criminal penalties that the law allows.

What to do if you are the victim of counterfeiters

If you come across a counterfeiter of our products, please gather as much information about them as you can before contacting us direct: Tell us where you saw them, bought the miniatures, where they were made, ect. If possible please buy a sample of the counterfeit product, get a receipt and send this to us, (we will reimburse you the postage costs and attempt to replace the counterfeit item with a real model).

We will also reward such information with a bounty, taking the form of £20 worth of TQD Castings/C-P Models product.
